

W. P. WALTON.

In opening wide the doors to all who by participating in the conventions will feel honor bound to support the nominees, the State committee reminds the voters that the democrats of Kentucky are a law-abiding and peace-loving people and will welcome to their ranks all who love liberty and justice and hate crime, those who believe in civil government and despise military usurpation and the adoption of murder as a weapon of party warfare, with those who abhor the way the courts have been defied and justice obstructed under republican rule. In a word every true Kentuckian without regard to former political affiliation is invited to join the democracy in stamping out the possible recurrence of such infamies and redeeming the honor of the State. Surely this is a liberal enough and broad enough to catch every democrat, who has strayed from the fold, and bring to the support of democracy the best men of all parties. Let democrats at least be true to themselves and the infamies of republican rule will be known no more in old Kentucky.

CAPT. PAGE MCCARTY, of Richmond, Va., of whose death the dispatches tell, was once a noted Virginia editor and was as handy with the pistol as with the pen. He fought several duels, the last with John Mordecai, his rival in the affections of Miss Mary Triplett, known as "the belle of the South" and one of the handsomest women who ever lived. At a ball she showed her preference for Mordecai, which angered McCarty and he left the room in a rage. They met afterwards at their club where a quarrel ensued in which Mordecai knocked his antagonist down. McCarty immediately challenged him to mortal combat and in the duel next day killed Mordecai and was himself desperately wounded, a fact which saved him from a long term in prison. Miss Triplett married shortly afterwards, showing that she cared for neither of the men who fought over her and that and the fact that he had killed his best friend made McCarty a recluse and a woman hater till death relieved him of his woes.

In nearly all of his many splendid speeches made during his gubernatorial campaign, Gov. Goebel said he did not want to be the chief executive of Kentucky unless the honor carried with it the privilege of signing J. C. S. Blackburn's credentials as U. S. Senator. The assassin's deadly aim took that privilege from him, but his worthy successor, Gov. Beckham, had the honor a day or two ago of signing the papers and transmitting them to Washington. While he was acting governor, Taylor refused to sign the credentials though there was no cloud on Blackburn's title and it is well now he didn't. A seat in the U. S. Senate with Taylor ever remotely connected with it would dishonor the great and noble man, whom Kentucky delights to honor.

We are neither a lawyer nor the son of a lawyer, but claim to be able to understand an apparently clear provision of law. That there should be any controversy or difference of opinion over whether a governor shall be elected this fall or not, seems almost ridiculous after reading the constitution on the subject. Yet there are those who say no election is necessary and that the court of appeals must construe the law on the subject to settle the question. Lawyers like doctors disagree though, and between technicalities and hair splittings, the layman is usually left in his decisions and deductions.

The subsidized Louisville Dispatch wants that arch traitor, John Young Brown, to be the republican nominee for governor and professes to think that if he will make the race under those conditions that Gov. Beckham or any other democrat would not stand the ghost of a show. As much as Brown has done against the party that made him all he ever was, it is hardly thought he will throw off his disguise and come out in his real colors.

It is sent out from Cincinnati that when Kentucky is called at the National convention, Taylor will arise and present the name of Gov. W. O. Bradley for vice president. The story has a fishy odor for two reasons. The first is we do not believe Bradley would appreciate the honor from such a man and the second that the governor of Pennsylvania hasn't yet promised immunity to assassination suspects.

"As certain as there is a God, Kentucky will some day be free," piped fugitive From Justice Taylor at a republican club entertainment in his honor at Indianapolis, where he is guarded to prevent his being taken by force back to the scene of his crime. Here, and as certain as there is a God, Taylor will some day face a jury that will not set him free by a long shot.

GOV. BECKHAM ought to put such a price on the heads of Taylor and Finley as they will be brought back to Kentucky by request or no request. They should not be permitted to defy the law if they have broken in this manner. They won't very long if a sufficient reward is offered. Men will be brought back to their backs in one day if the price is high enough.

GOV. BECKHAM is to have another handsome woman engaged to Miss ... is announced.

It is said that Taylor has gone into the life insurance business at Indianapolis. It is dollars to doughnuts that his company will not insure his life until he proves that he isn't shortly to shuffle off this mortal coil at the end of a hangman's noose.

MOUNT CAN'T BE COMPELLED.

The refusal of Gov. Mount to honor requisitions for the Kentucky assassins, who have made of Indianapolis a city of refuge, has evoked some discussion as to whether he can be compelled to perform this plain duty. The constitution of the United States, which Gov. Mount swore he would support when installed in office contains this provision: "A person charged in any State with treason, felony, or other crime, who shall flee from justice and be found in another State SHALL, on demand of the executive authority of the State from which he fled, be delivered up to be removed to the State having jurisdiction of the crime."

This section was put in force by Act of Congress in 1793.

Henry Campbell Black, the distinguished author of legal works, in his commentary on the constitution, says: "When the requisition is made by the proper authority and with all the necessary formalities, it is the IMPERATIVE DUTY of the governor of the State in which the fugitive is found to COMPLY WITH IT, without inquiring whether the fugitive has committed a crime according to the laws of the State to which he has fled. But if the governor refuses to comply with the requisition, there is no way of compelling him to do so. The U. S. court can not force the governor of a State into discharging his duty."

The position of Mr. Black is supported by a decision of the supreme court of the United States, rendered in 1861, in a proceeding by Beriah Magoffin, governor of Kentucky, against William Dennison, governor of Ohio.

Willis Lago, charged with violating an anti-bellum Kentucky statute, making it a felony to entice a slave from the service of his master, escaped to Ohio, and the governor of that State refused to honor Gov. Magoffin's requisition for his return. The latter then applied to the supreme court for a writ of mandamus to compel him to do so. The writ was refused, but the opinion, by Chief Justice Taney, thus scored the Ohio governor: "When the constitution was framed, and when this law was passed, it was confidently believed that a sense of justice and of mutual interest would insure a faithful execution of this constitutional provision by the executive of every State, for every State had an equal interest in the execution of a compact absolutely essential to their peace and well being in their internal concerns as well as members of the Union. Hence the use of the words ordinarily employed when an undoubted obligation is required to be performed 'it SHALL be his duty'. But if the governor of Ohio refuses to discharge this duty, there is no power delegated to the general government either through the judicial department or any other department to use any coercive means to compel him."

These quotations show that there is no provision of law by which Gov. Mount can be prevented from becoming famous by making himself infamous, and he has well earned the latter distinction, if not the former. In refusing to perform this ministerial duty, made mandatory by the constitution, enacted into law by Congress, and construed by the supreme court to mean what it says, he shows an utter disregard of the sanctity of his oath of office and is morally guilty of Goebel's murder in becoming an accessory after the fact by shielding the principals from the punishment they so richly deserve.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL.

The eclipse was witnessed here under perfect conditions and many a smoked glass was brought into play. The obscuration began about 6:45, was fullest an hour later and by another hour the moon had moved herself entirely out of the way. The atmosphere assumed a hazy appearance and inner rooms grew dark, but the phenomenon was not sufficient to scare the colored population as the total eclipse 31 years ago. The marvelousness of the exact calculation of the astronomers was again demonstrated amid the wonder of the people.

It is refreshing to observe that while Lancaster sent $42 55, Lawrenceburg $25 and other towns various sums to help pay Taylor's soldiers, Stanford didn't send a cent. Our republicans either do not think they ought to be paid or have nothing to contribute to the fund.

AGAINST THEM.—A gentleman who spent some time in Whitley county tells us that he was surprised to find a decided sentiment among the best republicans there against Finley and Taylor, some of whom spoke in harsher terms of both than he had heard any democrat use in speaking of them.

CONTEST.—Mr. E. H. Beazley has engaged the opera house for June 22 for his annual elocutionary contest, for which he has secured the following young ladies and will get several more: Misses Baughman, Richmond; Roberts, Danville; Griffin, Lexington; Carpenter, Millersburg; Pinkerton, Hustonville and Bettis, Lancaster.

If those who contributed to the fund to pay the expenses of Messrs. Hubble, Alverson and Embury, indicted in the U. S. court, would come forward with their donations, the treasurer, E. C. Walton, would be enabled to turn over the money to the gentlemen to pay lawyer's fees. Until they do so, he can not—a very clear proposition.

HUSTONVILLE FAIR.—It is more than likely that Hustonville will have a fair this year. The exhibition last year as well as those of other years have been successful from every standpoint and we see no good reason why our West End friends should "not try it again."

A meeting at James Frye's store is called for next Saturday afternoon at 1:30, when a decision will be reached.

THE census enumerators begin asking impertinent questions Friday and have the month of June to finish their work in.

AL G. FIELDS' great minstrels will appear here March 12th next. They do not usually play in the smaller towns, but do so this time in order to keep from losing a night on a long jump.

TO POLICY HOLDERS.—Any one holding policies written by me will find me at the old stand with only the best of companies, and will look after them and renew same, as I have done for five years. Pay no attention to what any one may tell you. Thanking you for past favors. Respt., Jesse D. Wearner.

ONE cent a mile going and coming is the rate to Louisville till the morning trains of June 1. On that morning at 7:35 a special from Richmond will pass here, which will arrive in Louisville at 10:50 in time to see the grand parade. Fare for round trip $2.10. Returning, leave Louisville at 8:30 P. M.

MISS GEORGIA LEWIS' school at Walnut Flat closed Friday with an examination, which showed the following pupils to be worthy of honorable mention, they having received over 85 of a possible 100: Minnie Boone 94; Anna Chancellor 91 2-5; Blanche Newland 90; Maggie Coffey 89; Clarence Boone 88; Geo. Chancellor 88 1-6; Shelby Coffey 86 1-6; Jennie Coffey 85 1-6.

If there is a single man who doubts that we print and send out 3,000 copies of the INTERIOR JOURNAL twice a week, he is cordially invited to step in to the press room any Tuesday or Friday morning, he may select and count them. He will see the mammoth machine draw six reams or more of white paper into its capacious maw and observe what a task it is to mail so many papers.

KENTUCKY'S elections are pretty hot, but they are icebergs beside a primary held in Kansas City last week. The regularly appointed officers of the election did not suit the mayor and he substituted others. The regulars, including Judge J. M. Phillips, late of Stanford, declined to give up the ballot box and on persisting after a second demand, were arrested and lodged in jail "with Negroes, criminals and vermin." The officers issued a red hot address which is published in the Star, shown us by C. V. Gentry, in which they call on democrats to assert their rights and take occasion to flay the mayor alive.

REV. R. R. NOEL, who arrived home yesterday, says that during the month he spent in Tennessee he preached three weeks at Lenoir City, where he had 27 professions and added 12 to the church. At Knoxville he added Pastor Snow in a week's meeting with three additions. Said he further: "The rain is badly needed there and nothing in the places I have been was as forward and as fresh as in Stanford. The INTERIOR JOURNAL was like a letter from home twice a week, for which I thank you. I enjoyed some good fishing in Tennessee river. Saw them take out some weighing 90 pounds. The best I ate was the drum, of about seven pounds weight. When asked where I was from and being told, "Kentucky," the people would walk around me to see my pistol and bowie knife, but when the natives found I was a peace commissioner they couldn't do too much for me."

IN face of our refusal to bring Gen. Gordon here for a third time and in spite of our expressed convictions that they would lose money, several Confederate soldiers, viz: Messrs. M. C. Sautley, W. G. Welch, J. W. Alcorn and G. W. DeBord, guaranteed for E. H. Beazley, who was to get nothing out of it, the expenses of the lecture, which were about $125, the excess of that amount to go to the Perryville Battle Field Park. As the receipts were only $60 it will be seen how heavily they had the bag to hold. We did well with the general the first time, but lost about $15 on the second trip, the receipts falling off over 100 per cent. Lectures don't go here as we have had impressed on us by the loss of more than $100 in the effort to provide such entertainments. It is a shame though that grand old Gen. Gordon should have to address empty benches and that he did here is no compliment to our people. After being presented by W. S. Burch, Esq., in a neat little speech, Gen. Gordon eloquently told of the hardships that the Spartan band of Confederates endured and of the bravery they exhibited, unparalleled even under the most adverse circumstances. The lecture was interspersed with laughable stories and personal reminiscences and was a gem both in composition and in delivery. Those who missed it missed a rare feast of reason, as well as a flow of soul from the biggest hearted man living. It is not likely that his dear old voice will ever echo here again, as he keenly felt the lack of appreciation, and in the very nature of things he can not be expected much longer to live to appeal for a reunited country, for he is 68 and growing feeble. May his days on earth though be greatly extended and strength be given him to continue for many years the prosecution of his noble work.

ROYAL BAKING-POWDER

No inferior or impure ingredients are used in Royal for the purpose of cheapening its cost; only the most highly refined and healthful.
Royal Baking Powder imparts that peculiar sweetness, flavor and delicacy noticed in the finest cake, biscuit, rolls, etc., which expert pastry cooks declare is unobtainable by the use of any other leavening agent

Alum is used in making cheap baking powders. If you want to know the effect of alum upon the tender linings of the stomach, touch a piece to your tongue. You can raise biscuit with alum baking powder, but at what a cost to health!

HARVEY, little son of S. S. Yantis, was bitten on the leg by Alex Martin's dog last night. The wound is a painful one.

THE democrats of Garrard are almost solid for Gov. McCreary for governor, according to expressions given yesterday. We believe that that is the sentiment of the most of this section.

NO. 26, the North bound passenger this morning had eight cars jam full of people, bound for the Confederate reunion at Louisville. Dr. W. B. O'Bannon and wife, E. P. Moritz, wife and Archie Elkie, and a half dozen or so drummers helped to swell the crowd from here.

THE wholesale grocery just opened at Danville—J. P. Frank Grocery Co.,—promises to make it warm for the railroads that run to the various towns in this section. They will haul their goods to this and other close-by towns at the low price of five cents per hundred, saving to the merchants from 15 to 25c freight charges. The goods will be delivered at the merchants doors, doing away with the trouble of hauling them from the depot.

MT. VERNON.—A good crowd attended Mt. Vernon circuit court yesterday, but it was the quietest public day for years. There was no drinking, no trouble and last but not least no patent medicine men. Court was called promptly at 9 o'clock with Judge T. Z. Morrow and Commonwealth's Attorney J. N. Sharpe on hand and full of business. No visiting attorneys except W. A. Morrow had arrived, but the local bar was present in full force. Most of the day was taken up with the trial of whisky and jail cases and a large number were disposed of. The docket is heavy in both civil and criminal cases, there being five murder cases, and Judge Morrow has extended the term two weeks in order to "clean up." The case of E. K. Wilson is set for the 5th day. Many think he will be acquitted. Mt. Vernon is growing slowly but surely and all she needs is time and a more enterprising citizens. Foundation has been finished for J. T. Adams' splendid brick business house and its completion is being pushed. The bank question has not been decided, but it is more than likely one will begin business soon. Our efficient correspondent, James Maret, is as busy as a bee in his telephone business, but he found time to help the I. J. cause considerably. Egbert Fish and others also have the paper's best wishes for kindly assistance. Editor Albright was as courteous as man could be and proffered his help to increase the circulation and otherwise assist the I. J. pilgrim, for which we are thankful.
